1. Create or find a good and interesting video clip from Youtube to illustrate the following components in your analysis. The video clip should just be about 3-5 minutes. It should be in English.

2. Isolate one interpersonal transaction from the video. Draw a model of communication using one of the characters as a source and the other as a receiver. Be sure to identify each of the following components of the model and provide examples of each:

   - encoding
   - decoding
   - message
   - channel
   - noise
   - feedback

3. Using the same transaction, identify examples of each of the following:

   - Interpersonal communication is a dynamic process.
   - Interpersonal communication is inescapable.
   - Interpersonal communication is unrepeatable.
   - Interpersonal communication is irreversible.
   - Interpersonal communication is complicated.
   - Interpersonal communication is contextual.
   - Interpersonal communication is governed by rules.

4. What were the goals of the two characters in the interaction?

Once you have analysed for the above elements, you need to transfer your analysis in Powerpoint format and present this during our second F2F meet (4th May 2019). Therefore, attendance is compulsory.

You can play the video at the beginning of your presentation and then move on to your presentation slides.

For illustration purposes, you can copy and paste snippets from the video onto the Powerpoint slides.

The first slide should contain your name and matric number.

Presentation time is 10 minutes per person. Maximum number of slides is 12.

Print the Powerpoint handout and pass it to me on presentation day.
